

December 2022

P1055 Consumer Survey Report – Graphical Summary

Most people believe the food they buy in shops and supermarkets is safe to eat

GM foods are not a top food safety issue for most people, even though a majority think they are already for sale:

 60% of people think that GM foods or food ingredients are currently for sale

 19% of people chose GM foods as one of their top 3 food safety issues

People's level of support for GM foods changes depending on the way the technology is used:

Even so, nearly half of people have some level of concern about GM foods

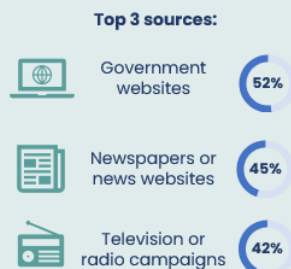

When asked about GM foods, people are most concerned about:

Most people don't feel they know a lot about GM food

About half of people would like to know more about GM foods and want information from traditional sources.

Trust in GM food producers and scientists was the key to people's level of support for GM foods.

